New York, New York, November 1, 2017: The law firm of Littleton Park Joyce Ughetta & Kelly LLP (Littleton Park) announced today the celebration of its ten-year anniversary, marked by a confluence of events and opportunities that represent exciting changes for clients and friends of the firm.

The firm has surpassed the benchmarks envisioned just ten years ago when a group of talented, like-minded and experienced litigators left their former firm to combine their entrepreneurial approach to the practice of law with their practical business judgment in service to clients' legal and business needs.

"After founding and managing a professional services business for a decade, we recognize more than ever the need to look at all issues through a business lens. Littleton Park lawyers share that perspective and, we are proud to say that our clients tell us they rely on the firm to provide that," states Bob Littleton.

Littleton Park has now combined forces with the following lawyers to expand its service offering in complimentary practice areas:

- Robert R. Axenfeld, Of Counsel, brings many years of Intellectual Property (IP) experience, with a particular focus on high-tech computer software and hardware, and e-commerce. He has also served as in-house counsel to Unisys Corporation and Lucent Technologies.
- Louis A. Felicetta, Partner, integrates his extensive real estate experience in all areas including zoning and land use, and litigation and appeals.
- Michael A. Prokop, Of Counsel, a seasoned commercial transactions lawyer, adds to the firm his concentration in supply, procurement, global outsourcing and master service agreements, and technology licenses and research collaboration agreements, among many others. Earlier in his career, he was an in-house business unit general counsel at Honeywell.

- Hokon Stephen Yoo, Of Counsel, increases our capability to serve clients in unique areas of commercial transactions, for example, software licensing agreements between the US and foreign companies, vendor agreements for online markets, and international commercial contracts and compliance reports for select federal agencies.

“I had long been looking for an opportunity where the synergy was just right – practice focus, culture, client base – and I am thrilled to be part of the Littleton Park team,” said Michael Prokop. “It’s a win/win.”
